Outline Description	The Chapel of the Madonna of Light is one of the oldest chapel in Zebbug. Prior to the present chapel, there was another chapel
Property Description	This small chapel has the typical characteristics of other chapels around Malta and Gozo. It is built on a small square plan with an impressive façade. The façade is elevated from the ground by two large plinths and contained by two flat pillars topped with a simple rectangular capital. It terminates with an entablature and a heavy cornice. Finally, on the upper most part of the façade, there is a pedestal together with two globe urns. Access to the interior of the chapel is via a large rectangular door framed with rectangular stone moulding and embellished with a broken triangular pediment. Directly above the main doorway, there is a large square window with elongated scrolls on its sides.
